The Gumuchdjian Villa

Interior 1,501 sq m

Terrace 671 sq m

Site 10,257 sq m

London's Gumuchdjian Architects have worked on some of the world's most recognisable creative spaces, from the Centre Pompidou-Metz to the Paper Forest Pavilion at Kew Gardens. Its founder, Philip Gumuchdjian, has been awarded architecture's highest accolades, including the National Award by the Royal Institute of British Architects (RIBA) and the Stephen Lawrence award.

"By framing Calpe – the Rock of Gibraltar, within the main building and by using a strong axis, the design evolves around finding modernity in tradition and distilling future out of the past. The final building is minimal in its appearance but offers richness in its spatially complex interior and in its warm and crafted material palette"
