Designers of Monocle Magazine's acclaimed headquarters, Midiori House, this young architecture studio rapidly gained an international reputation for precision and craftsmanship, the go-to studio for high-impact, high-end property projects – including Stockholm archipelago's famous summer house, Aspvik House, and Karlatornet, the highest building in Gothenburg. Recent commissions include Continental Apartments – 18 luxurious high-rise apartments in central Stockholm with a penthouse complete with 70-tonne suspended pool, the Aspvik House – a summer house in Stockholm's archipelago which has been widely published and Karlatornet – the design of the penthouses and premium residential levels of Scandinavia's highest building in Gothenburg.

"By framing Calpe – the Rock of Gibraltar, within the main building and by using a strong axis, the design evolves around finding modernity in tradition and distilling future out of the past. The final building is minimal in its appearance but offers richness in its spatially complex interior and in its warm and crafted material palette"
